

Mollie Stone's Privacy Policy

Mollie Stone's understands that you care how your information is used and shared. We appreciate the trust that our customers have in us and we intend to live up to that trust. We assure you that the information gathered through this site will only be used on behalf of giving you, our valued customer, the best services and products available.

What information do we collect?

We collect the following information when you register on our website:

- Contact information such as name and email address
- Your preferences such as store, special interests and birthday
- Questions, comments, and other content you submit
- molliestones.com login credentials, including your password
- Job application information

Why do we need personal information?

Our goal is to bring you the products you care about most and by reaching out to you from time to time, it gives us the opportunity to know more about your preferences and ideas. We also want feedback on the products we carry. In addition we want you to know that we appreciate your business by offering special gifts or opportunities in events. We don't have a loyalty program that tracks your shopping habits, but we would like the opportunity to send a special thank you.

Do we share any of your information?

Mollie Stone's uses your information only for our internal promotions and buying decisions. Your information is never sold or shared with any outside organization.